So Poor that They Cannot Now Pay Their Way to This Country-

The Third Napoleon of Finance Continues to Refuse Food at Ludiow Street Jail-His Only Drink is Ice Water Bis Actions Appear to Betray Insanity-The Latest Indicements Against Rim.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The whole story of the Wiechers' family connection with the wrecked firm of Field, Lindley, Wiechers & Co. is slowly coming out, and promises to be exceedingly intereating when all is told. It is now said that the members of the family who live in Germany are actually so destitute through the operations of Field that they have not money enough to pay their passage to this country, even though less than two years they were heirs to a million and a half dollars worth of property. George F. Wiethers, of Porto Rico, is said to still possess some means of his own.

The money of the Wiechers family came, so the story goes, from a rich relative, William A. Wiechers, who dying a few years ago, left semething like $1,509,000 to his relatives. A large portion of this money, it is now said, was put into the hands of young Wiechers, and by him invested in the Field-Lindiev enterprise.

Testimony of the Mon Upon Whom the Prozecution Trusts Its Case.

CHICAGO, Dec. 22.-Mrs. Florence Cuthbertson, a former society bells of Chicago, was granted a divorce yester-day at Sioux Falls, S. D. Her case is remarkable. She was young, beautiful, wealthy, and the wife of William Donglass, a member of the Board of Trade of

About a year ago, Douglass, in looking through his wife's desk, found, he pretended, some very ardent letters from a young real estate dealer. Sidney Cuthbertson. He hired a lawyer, and the two conferred with his wife and attempted to browbeat her into a confession. They locked her in a room and labored with her for several hours, but labored with her for several hours, but without success.

A few days later Mrs. Douglass received notice to attend Judge Horton's court and sign a deed. She went, and found in full progress a suit by her husband for divorce. This was her first intimation of his intention, and having no time to employ counsel she went on the stand and denied the charge of infidelity. Cuthbortson was then called and admitted it. Judge Horton promptly granted the decree, and ordered the wife and co-respondent to be married at once or be punished to the full extent of their alleged crime—five years in the penitentiary.

TYRONNE'S BANK CLOSED.

No Specific Renson Given - Liabitities Will Reach $75,000.

Typonne, Pa., Dec. 25.—This town is greatly excited over the failure of the Pyronne Bank. Yesterday the people greatly actived over the faiture of the Terome Bank. Yeaterday the people saw the following notice posted on the doors of the bank:

"A drain upon its resources compels this bank to close for the present.

C. Guyun, Cashier."

When the regular opening hour had arrived and the doors remained closed the citizens started in search of the cashier and the stockholders—Claute Jones, C. Guyer, P. Flynn and A. R. Hoover. It was found, however, that they were mostly out of town, the rest refusing to be seen. The deposits were generally of small amounts, but the liabilities will reach $75,000.

It is thought that the bank will be able to pay 80 cents on the dollar. No cause, other than the one posted, can be assigned for the crash.

Lutest London Divorce Case.

Lordon, Dec. 23.—Following closely upon the Russell separation case, St. John divorce suit and the Osborne-Hargreaves revelations, society is to be treated to another instalment of court disclosures concerning people in high life. Forger Stoddard Almost Victimizes Elliott F. Shepard.

M'RINLEY'S HAND IMITATED,

And So Cleverly Done that the Colonel Was for a Time Deceived.

Stoddard Wanted the Same $1,200 He Has So Nearly Succeeded in Getting on Other Occasions - His Dodge that of the Reformed Young Man, With a Broken-Hearted Mother Out West-- A Clever Piece of Work.

New York, Dec. 22 -Edward L. Stoddard's forgery mill in the Hudson County Jail, where he has been a prismer since last August, has been very busy of late, but the boldest effort that he has made to raise money by the skilful use of his pen was the scheme which has just come to light to raise $1,200 by forging the name of Gov. elect Mc-Kluisy, of Ohio. The victim selected by Stoddard at this end of the line was ill liott F. Shepard, and the plot came near being successful. RaSeveral days ago Col. Shepard received a letter bearing the postmark Cauton, Ohio, and marked 'private and confidential.' Before reading the letter he looked at the signature and was 'alighted to see the bold signature of William McKinley, Jr. After a few personal matters the letter stated that Mr. Mcmatters the letter stated that Mr. Mc-kinley had become greatly interested in a very bright young man, James S. Wolfe by name, now confined in the Hudson County jail for forgery. Mr. McKinley did not know the boy very well, but was intimately acquainted with his father, who was his school-mate. The boy had ruined a bright prospect of success as a lawyer by hard drinking and association with this yes. He was on the stool of repensance now, for sorry for his misdeeds and had ex pressed an earnest desire to reform. He pressed an earnest desire to reform. He had been away from home for several years and his mother mourned for him as dead. She was surprised to get a letter from him a few days before, in which he stated that he had made up his mind to live honestly, and had turned his thoughts to religion and would hereafter take the Bible as his guide. Mrs. Wolfe could not stand her son's pitcons appeal for assistance, and she called open Mr. McKinley and deposited $2,000 to be sent to her son in instalments. instalmegin

Mr. His pard was directed to call up Wolfe at the Hudson County Jail and examine into the alleged reformation of the young man. In order that there should be no mistake made, a dozen questions were given which would make questions were given which would make the identification positive. These re-lated to Wolfe's birthplace, the names of his parents and ancestors, the towns in which they had lived, and the date of birth and death and the burial place of some of the members of his family. In case all the questions were answer-ed correctly, which would be a guaran-tee that Wolfe was the right man, Mr. Shepard was to give him $1,200, which, the latter hinted, was to be used in the latter hinted, was to be used in bribing the guards and jailor, so that he could make his escape from the jail and from punishment for a crime that and from punishment for a crime that he did not commit.

The letter directed Mr. Shepard to call upon Judge William D. Daly of Hoboken, who would accompany him to the jail, but under no circumstances was Mr. Daly to be told of the latter or context the works.

was Mr. Daly to be told of the letter or receive the money.

The letter was so plain and the signature of Mr. McKinley so perfect that Mr. Shepard was inclined to send the money to Wolfe without further inquiry, but on the following day he telegraphed to Mr. McKinley at Canton asking if the letter was all right and received a reply which indicated that Mr. McKinley was puzzled and did not know what Mr. Shepard was trying to find out.

Mr. Shepard gave the letter tolhis Mr. Shepard gave the letter to his lawyer, Robert C. Alexander, Mr. Alexander could not see any flaw in the letter and went with it to Judge Baly's office in Hoboken. The judge did not know anything about it, and he and Mr. Alexander went to the jail. The prisoner is not known as Stoddard there. When arrested he gave the name of John S. Wood, and two mouths later changed it to John S. Wolfe, Mr. Alexander was surprised at Stoddard's appearance. He is over six fees high, and very well built, has an intellectual face and a relined manner.

He was very shy at first and would not talk, but finally admitted that he had written to his mother for help. Mr. Alexander asked Stolddard all the questions to identify Wolfe, and he answered them all correctly. Mr. Alexander tried to trip him up by a severa crossexamination, but Stoddard was equal to the test, and the lawyer left with the impression that the letter was genuine. He retained Judge Daly to look out for the prisoner's case and said he would send him a chack for $200.

the prisoner's case and said he would send him a check for $200. Judge Daly refused to accept it, as he Judge Daly refused to accept it, as he believed the McKinley letter was a forgery. He knew something of Stoddard's history, who had got his release from a jail in Tonnessee by forging the Governor's name to a pardon and had been accused of forgery in other States. That the letter was a forgery was confirmed shortly afterward by a genuine latter from Maj. McKinley.
